Hartford: I've been communicating with members of the city council and many of the restaurant and bar owners in Hartford over the last 24 hours. A few weeks back this group self-regulated and put in matching procedures to make sure that our community and their customers have been safe while they expanded their openings. It is now time for each individual business to operate as they see fit. You may still see changes in their procedures and practices because as we know, the virus didn't disappear, but the spread in our region has been downward trending. I commend these business owners for changing their business practices and protecting everyone's safety even though it greatly affected their livelihood. They have been there for us; make sure to be there for them when and how you feel safe doing so.
